Content Focus

Biomedical Safety & Standards has been a key resource for reliable information in the areas of medical safety and standards for more than three decades. The newsletter updates biomedical technicians and clinical engineers on the latest developments in patient safety, standards, regulations, incidents, device recalls, and professional issues. Bi-weekly issues cover everything needed to stay current on technology, safety and risk policies, new laws and standards, and equipment maintenance. Regular features include reports on safety, hazards, and risk management; updates on class I and II FDA recalls and field corrections; briefings on the latest requirements for medical equipment and/or facilities; legal issues surrounding medical device safety; the latest news from government agencies; and new educational resources.
